Hoffman Says '49 Fund May Be Less

Progress, He Says, Reason for Drop; No Idea of Amount

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—Paul Hoffman said today that next year's European recovery fund may be less than this year's $5,000,000,000 because of the progress being made.

The European cooperation administration today held a news conference at which Hoffman said that the size of next year's fund would depend on the progress made in the recovery program.

Hoffman said that the recovery program has gone on in the European countries to the point where he believes it will cost for a smaller sum than we have this year.

What the amount will be, Hoffman also reported, will depend on the progress made in the recovery program.

Hoffman wants to hold up this year's fund as a model of what the best recovery program would be, he said.

When reporters put questions about the possibility of Hoffman's plan to cut the recovery program, Hoffman said that the program is not in his responsibility and he could not answer any questions about it.

The Marshall Plan Act requires Hoffman to determine which surplus plants should be left in Germany in the interest of over-all European recovery, and which should be dismantled and moved as reparations to allied countries.

Hoffman is obliged to request Secretary of State Marshall, once the E.C.A. findings are made, to reach agreement with the French and British on the basis of the E.C.A. findings.

Hoffman set up a committee headed by George M. Humphrey, president of the M. A. Hanna Company, Cleveland, to study the several hundred plants involved.

Dean and Schuman, he said, have agreed to cooperate with this committee. He also agreed, Hoffman said, that the problem of the plants should be disposed of "once and for all in the shortest possible time."

He emphasized that the plants involved are only those which have been declared surplus, under the German level of industrial production agreed upon by Britain and the United States last fall.

The Chief Executive headed into Indiana for the third time after a speech at Milwaukee in which he said the Republican nominee had brought the atomic problem today with the claim his opponent has "a dangerous lack of understanding" of this vital subject.

Mr. Truman spoke last night to a police-estimated crowd of 15,000 in the Milwaukee ball park. He said Governor Dewey had "clearly implied a belief that there should be a private exploitation of this tremendous atomic asset. He insisted it 'must be kept under public control.'"

The President switched from atomic to "human resources" as he worked on the draft of another major speech to be delivered at 9:30 o'clock E.S.T. tonight in the World War Memorial at Indianapolis. Rear platform talks en route were scheduled in several Indiana communities.

While Mr. Truman was addressing the capacity crowd at the Milwaukee ball park last night, Henry A. Wallace, Progressive party nominee, spoke to what police estimated at 1,800 paying customers in two separate rooms at the Milwaukee Auditorium.

Mr. Truman's address was a reply to a speech Governor Dewey delivered at Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 23. Dewey had said atomic secrets and military developments must remain a government monopoly at all costs. But beyond this security precaution, he said, atomic progress can not continue to be left exclusively under "the dead hand of government."

The President contended that his rival "blundered" into the sub-

Greeks Will Blame Reds For Slaying

Legal Action Ordered Against Four Papers for Publishing Polk Stories

No Denial Made

Reds in Athens Made Plans in February to Kill Man

Athens, Oct. 15 (AP)—Athens newspapers said today the government will announce in Salonika Sunday that Greek Communists killed CBS correspondent George Polk.

The Ministry of Justice ordered legal action against four newspapers for violating a ban against publishing stories on the Polk case.

The Conservative newspaper Embros said Justice Minister George Melas had requested that publication of the story be held up pending official announcement by the Ministry of Public Order.

However, three other Athens newspapers—Oi Karoi, the organ of Foreign Minister Constantinos Tsaldaris; Acropolis and Eleftheria—carried virtually the same account of the killing. One newspaper carried an artist's conception of the crime.

For nearly two months Greek police have held for questioning, without charges, an avowed leftist newspaperman, Gregory Staktopoulos, and his mother. Embros reported recently that Staktopoulos met Polk before the CBS man's disappearance.

Polk's body, with a bullet hole in the head, was found floating in Salonika harbor last May 15. The 34-year-old Fort Worth, Tex. correspondent had been missing from his hotel room for a week. He was reported to have told his colleagues he intended to try to interview Communist Markos Vamvakis, the Greek guerrilla leader.

When Polk's body was found the hands and feet were bound tightly with coarse hemp rope. The muzzle of a gun apparently had been pressed close to the back of his skull when he was shot.

The case received wide attention, Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, former head of the United States Office of Strategic Services, came to Greece to investigate as special counsel in the case for the Overseas Writers' Committee.

For the past month publication of developments in the Polk investigation has been banned in Greece.

The chief editor of Embros said he had his story of the Polk case to Melas and that the latter did not deny it.

The gist of the editor's story was as follows: The Communist Party decided in Athens last February to kill Polk and lay the blame on the Athens government to give the world the impression the government is Fascist and would kill foreign correspondents who dared to criticize it.

A leftist Salonika newsman, former member of the Communist Party and the underground press who studied at a special Communist underground school in Salonika, was called to Athens by the party and told of the plan.

When Polk visited Salonika the left-wing newsman met him at a hotel and learned that he wanted to contact the Greek guerrillas.

On May 8, Polk was taken by the Salonika newsman to a waterfront restaurant for dinner with two Communist agents. On the pretext that they were taking Polk to a meeting with the guerrillas, the trio took him aboard a small boat and blindfolded him.

The killers shot Polk through the head and his body was tossed into the bay, miles from shore. After Polk's body was washed

Vishinsky Renews Charge Berlin Crisis Fault of Western Powers' Violations; Says Bramuglia Maneuver Very Skilled

Wicks Cites Dewey 'Smear' by Democrats

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—State Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston, said today the Democrats have attempted to "smear" Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's financial record in New York state.

Wicks said the attempts will fail because "they are founded not on fact but on the shifting sands of Democratic campaign fiction."

The attack on Dewey came from the Democratic National Committee, Wicks said.

In a prepared statement, Wicks, who is Senate Finance Committee chairman, added: "After charging the Dewey administration for five years with being niggardly in spending state funds, the Democratic minority did an abrupt about-face * * * and started accusing the Governor of being a spendthrift."

Dewey Will Answer Truman Charge He Was Isolationist

Governor Tells Missouri Voters Administration Is Tired, Confused; at St. Paul

En route with Dewey to St. Paul, Oct. 15 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey prepared today to answer President Truman's charge he is a "recent convert" from isolationism.

Dewey's reply—planned in a major address in St. Paul tonight—was to be in the form of a positive statement of his views on international problems.

The Republican presidential nominee seemed unlikely to mention Mr. Truman's accusation directly in the talk, to be broadcast (ABC) from 9:30 to 10 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

Paul Lockwood, Dewey's secretary, said the New York governor will discuss "the creation of a vital, realistic and firm foreign policy."

Lockwood added that Dewey also will talk about "the development of a prosperous agriculture, aided by price supports, soil conservation programs and rural electrification to feed the people of our country and help to feed the world."

But it was the foreign policy question that topped all others in interest as Dewey cut across Minnesota for first rear platform talks and off-train speeches at Owatonna and Mankato.

Dewey had the double-barreled job of making not only his own views clear but of urging the election of Sen. Joseph Ball, who bolted the 1944 Dewey-Bricker ticket but is back in the G.O.P. fold this year.

Ball has seldom seen eye to eye with the New York governor's supporters call Dewey's "internationalist" views on foreign policy.

In urging the election of Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, the Democratic senatorial nominee, President Truman yesterday paid his respects to Ball as "the former liberal who was converted to reaction."

Ball's Vote Needed
The Republicans sorely need Ball's vote to retain control of the Senate where they now outnumber the Democrats only 51 to 45.

Dewey is expected to call—as he did in Salt Lake City earlier in the campaign—for firm dealing with Russia which would convince the Soviets this country cannot be "bullied" or "bluffed."

He probably will cite his early support of the proposed United States of Europe and his plan for international control of the Ruhr.

The New Yorker continued in Kansas City last night his attack on the Truman administration's handling of foreign affairs.

Abortive Raid Is Made on Suspicion Of Gambling Acts

Five Telephones Are Found on Second Floor of 124 North Front Street

A raid by 18 local policemen on the second floor at 124 North Front street Thursday afternoon failed to disclose any evidence that that place has been used for gambling or booking activity.

Chief of Police Raymond Van Buren and Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk disclosed today.

After surrounding the building and entering through front and rear doors, the police found only two persons in the building, both of whom were working on automobile tire repair in Al's Tire Shop located on the first floor.

Nothing was found on the second floor except five telephones, he said. The fact that any place of business has five telephones is by no means evidence that anything illegal has been taking place.

The raiding party of 18 armed policemen left police headquarters at 2:40 p. m. in five automobiles under the command of Captain William T. Roedel. Mayor Newkirk accompanied the raiders.

Only Slight Possibility
Chief of Police Van Buren indicated this morning that there was only a slight possibility of there having been a "tip-off" or advance warning given of the raid. He said he is certain that most of the policemen who participated in the raid "had no idea where they were going" when they left headquarters.

The raid was "very well planned, and everything went off with no hitches," Mayor Newkirk said, adding that "the boys did a nice job."

In order to prevent a possible "leak," Chief Van Buren remained in headquarters himself and did not participate in the actual raid, the mayor said.

On their arrival, police immediately surrounded the entire building, and others entered through every available exit, the chief said. In one case, an axe was used to gain entrance through a locked door, he said.

A search warrant had been obtained beforehand by police from County Judge John M. Cashin after police had been investigating complaints against the location "over a period of time," Mayor Newkirk said.

Appropriates $60,000 To Get an Industry

Putnam, Conn., Oct. 15 (AP)—A special town meeting here last night appropriated $60,000 "to improve the establishment here of a branch of a nationally known manufacturing concern."

The identity of the concern was not disclosed at the meeting which was presided over by Mayor William E. Baber, although it is generally understood to be a branch of the American Optical Company at Southbridge, Mass.

There was no dissenting voice among the 300 persons who attended the meeting to the appropriation.

Clay Sees Peace, If West Powers Refuse to Yield

Commander Says Red Expansion Will Recede if Firm Stand Is Continued

Berlin, Oct. 15 (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay feels "Soviet expansion will not only be halted, it will recede," if the western powers continue their firm stand in Berlin.

"The remarks by the American commander in Germany were in a speech made public last night by a responsible source close to Clay. The speech was made privately September 25 to delegates of the British Parliamentary Conference who visited Berlin."

Clay said lasting peace in Europe could be attained if the western powers refuse to yield to the Russians. He said the rise of democratic forces and economic recovery in western Europe would create pressure against Soviet domination in the satellite countries.

He linked the rise of democracy in western Europe directly with the maintenance of the western powers' position in Berlin.

"We must be firm," he said. "By continuing this airift indefinitely and maintaining our position in Berlin we will have assured people who do want freedom they will not be abandoned."

Discussing the Soviet blockade of Berlin, Clay said the western powers tried to buy food from Poland and Czechoslovakia for the besieged former German capital, but were blocked by Russia.

The American military governor said "this was a definite indication the blockade was placed into effect as a starvation measure * * *

Carpenter Council Objects to Lloyd Bridge Toll Claim

Members of Carpenters' District Council of Ulster County and vicinity, an organization to which members of Locals 1175, 251, 1038 and 1545 belong, at a meeting held last evening took objection to a recent statement that "residents of the city of Poughkeepsie and the town of Lloyd are solely responsible for all of the tolls collected on that (Mid-Hudson) bridge."

The Council adopted a resolution asking for a "refund" of the "thousands of dollars paid in tolls by members of the Ulster County District Council of Carpenters who use the bridge daily."

The resolution adopted by the Carpenters' District Council, comes as a result of a controversy which has been waged of late between southern Dutchess and southern Ulster county residents who have sought to oppose the construction of a bridge across the Hudson between Kingston and northern Dutchess county.

Belief That Russians Would Swallow Idea Is Naive, He Says in Council

Agreed to Answer Big Three Said They Would Give Reply to Argentinian

Paris, Oct. 15 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky broke his Kremlin-imposed silence in the Security Council today and renewed his charge that the Berlin question arose because the western powers violated agreements with Russia.

Six lesser powers on the council had appealed to the Big Four to settle the blockade by direct negotiation.

Foreign Minister Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentina, acting council chairman, asked the four big powers today for details on the Aug. 30 agreement between Prime Minister Stalin and western diplomats and for the instructions given the four military governors of Germany to implement the accord.

Under the agreement, Russia was to lift the blockade and the western powers were to recognize the Soviet mark as the sole currency for Berlin.

The American, British and French delegates said they were willing to answer Bramuglia's questions at the next council meeting on Berlin.

When they then rose and declared the Argentine's questions were a "very skilled" maneuver to drag the Soviet delegation into the Berlin debate.

Vishinsky, who came to the Council with a full staff of assistants and made doilies during the first part of the meeting, went on: "It is naive to believe the Soviet Union will swallow this bait. * * * no gentlemen, we will not. We see no reason why the Security Council should burden itself with new details and material."

Vishinsky contended last week the Security Council has no jurisdiction over the Berlin question. He said a blockade does not exist. He contended that only the Foreign Ministers' Council may act on German questions until a German peace treaty is signed. He repeated these arguments today. He recalled that the Kremlin had ordered him to take no part in debate with the western powers, that the Russian action in Berlin endangered peace and security.

Vishinsky repeated his theme that there would be no Berlin question if the western powers had not violated agreements made by the four nations occupying Germany.

When he finished, the old prosecutor turned around toward members of his delegation. He smiled broadly. Then he sat down, seized his pencil and returned to his doodle-making.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup of the United States, Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain and Alexandre Parodi of France all had declared their willingness to Bramuglia's request for more information. They said they felt, however, they had already replied to his questions in their previous declarations.

Police Catch Boys With Garden Hose

A prompt telephone call to police headquarters at 8:10 p. m. Thursday enabled police to catch several young boys in the act of taking a garden hose from the yard at 151 Washington avenue.

After the telephone call was relayed by radio to Patrolmen Leonard Ellsworth and Raymond Wells in a patrol car, the two officers reached the location just as the boys were carrying off the hose. Since the boys were all under 16 years of age, the policemen dismissed them after giving them a severe reprimand and warning them that "any future capers will result in arrest" and action by Children's Court, the police report stated.

This is the second such incident reported by police within two days. Wednesday evening three lengths of hose were reported stolen from 105 Maiden Lane by a group of boys. The hose was later found by police on Wall street near Pearl street, police said.

Says War Is Not Worst
London, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Archbishop of York says "war is not the worst of all evils." In a presidential address at the convocation of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett said: "The Christian with all his hatred of war and passionate desire for peace must recognize that war is not the worst of all evils. The utter degradation of man, the loss of human rights and the trampling underfoot of all that's righteous and true is an evil worse than war."

Dewey-Warren Ticket Now Holds Lead in 27 States

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY
Director, The Crossley Poll

Outside of the south, for which a separate report will be given shortly, the Dewey-Warren ticket leads in the latest poll in 27 states and the Truman-Barkley ticket leads in five states. In three states the situation is 50-50.

All percentages are considered to be subject to a variation of at least two percentage points, one way or the other for the major candidates, due to the limitation of samples of the population. These states marked with a "1" are tied or close enough to swing either way through sample variation or the shift of a very few votes. Undecided voters are projected.

*Previously reported.

The situation as to Wallace representation on the ballot is now cleared up in nearly all states where his vote might represent the balance of power. However, recent trends have shown Wallace declining and Truman thereby gaining some small advantage. If all or a very substantial part of the Wallace vote went to Truman in states where Wallace is a deciding factor, Dewey might lose or come close to losing a number of electoral votes.

In the south, Dewey is at present leading in Virginia with 11 electoral votes, but in no other states. A poll is now being completed to compare Truman and Thurmond in the light of recent developments.

Mediator Asks Aid In Settling Strike

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—A federal mediator has asked the aid of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut state mediation boards to settle a milk drivers' dispute affecting 11,000,000 consumers.

Federal Mediator Walter A. Maggioni said yesterday he had asked the state boards to send mediators to a meeting next Monday because "the welfare of a large number of people is affected."

Maggioni stepped into the dispute after failure of direct negotiations between 150 milk companies and locals of the A.F.L. Teamsters Union.

The union represents 15,000 milk drivers serving customers in New York city, Nassau, Westchester and Suffolk counties, northern New Jersey, and a large part of Fairfield county, Conn.

The federal mediator also asked the New York City Labor Relations Division to send a representative to the mediation meeting.

The union seeks a $10 weekly wage boost. The current basic wage is $59.50 a week.

No strike has been threatened by the union. However, under a wage reopening clause in its contract, it is free to strike after Oct. 24 if the wage dispute is not settled.

Brewery Union Says It Will Provide Men

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Calling a strike of some 600 drivers for six breweries an "irresponsible, wild-cat action," a brewery drivers' union says it will provide men to operate the companies' trucks if the strikers do not go back to work.

Almost 2,700 brewery workers have been idled by the work stoppage.

The walkout was "contrary to the orders issued by the international union, the local unions and the joint board," said a spokesman yesterday for the C.I.O. United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers.

The union statement added that the contract, to which it said a "minority" were objecting, had been approved by a two-to-one vote in a secret ballot of the membership.

Strike action started after short penalty layoffs of 63 drivers at the Jacob Ruppert Brewing Company for reported failure to keep up with a new work schedule. Drivers for five other companies joined in what they termed a "lockout."

Many drinking places said they would be out of beer by Sunday or Monday unless deliveries are resumed.

Frederick Sickles, international union executive, said the union is trying to persuade all the men to go back to work.

Other breweries affected are Schaeffer, Liebmann, Piel Brothers, Trommer and Burke.

Newhouse Says Reds Will Pick Time for War

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Newspaper publisher Samuel I. Newhouse, who returned from Europe yesterday, predicts war with the Soviet Union soon and says "Russia will pick the time."

Accompanied by his wife, he arrived on the liner Queen Mary after a six-weeks tour of France, Britain and the low countries.

Newhouse said, "war with Russia will come in one, two or three years."

He said, "Europeans consider that a new war is inevitable and that it is only a question of time."

Saying he had talked with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, Newhouse declared "you cannot deal with him."

The publisher said he was unable to buy European newspaper for his newspapers. Finland's wood pulp is being sent to Russia as reparations while Sweden's is selling at "gray market prices almost double our own," he said.

BABSON on BUSINESS

WAR FORECAST FOR 1948

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15—The Russia of Nicholas II and its police knew Joseph Stalin as a violent totally uninhibited revolutionary—a saboteur, jail-breaker, bank robber, and killer of policemen. He led a life of habitual duplicity, although pretending to be a law-abiding citizen. He justified his actions by regarding them as sanctioned by Marxist principles and intended to lift the masses of the people.

We should not defend Czarism nor debate the right of any man to become revolutionary under such circumstances. I do think it is important, however, that we keep in mind that a revolutionist although now in the position of dictator, will never react or respond in a manner to which we are accustomed. The ex-bandit and outlaw is not going to become a frank and honest law-abiding citizen merely because he is absolute dictator of his country.

Three Reasons for No War Now

(1) When forecasting the possibility of World War III we must decide how to interpret Stalin's current activities and should give proper weight to this gangster-like character of his party. In my opinion, the guerrilla and harassing tactics of the Stalinists in Berlin and elsewhere betray fear and a sense of military inferiority. They want certain political, territorial, and economic gains, but they don't dare start an all-out war for them. Hence, they pursue harassing tactics, like a dog nipping at a wildcat; but never intending really to close in, and always ready to back away when the cat turns in reprisal. This is the method by which they forged ahead during their early struggling days. It is logical to believe they will want to continue to follow this method now rather than fight.

(2) It seems logical that if Stalin were expecting to go to war with us, he would protest amity. In his preparations for war, first priority would be given to the building up of an atmosphere of apparent good will with the enemy eventually to be surprised with a sudden furious assault. This he is not doing. Hence, we have a second reason for not expecting World War III now.

(3) Russia, on account of her climate would be handicapped greatly by war in winter, especially without being reinforced by trucks from the U.S.A., ordnance from England and other necessary equipment of Anglo-Saxon manufacture. This is my third reason for being optimistic for the present.

No War—Unless We Start It?

Months ago I formally predicted no war in 1948. I am now coming to the viewpoint that there may be no war in 1949 unless we start it. Stalin will affront us again and again; he will tread on our toes, and try to push us around, but will he at this time expose himself to a war he knows that he can't win? Vivid in his mind is the memory that the Germans, with half the population, defeated him thoroughly until we stopped them.

It was our support that rescued Russia from complete annihilation by the Nazis. How much weaker would that industrially backward country be today if pitted against all of western Europe and America? I fear the time may come when our people will cease to ask—will Russia start a war with us? Instead they may ask—should not we start the war?

When Stalin Gets the Bomb

The Stalin government is showing itself unwilling to live amicably within the United Nations. Should the United Nations tolerate a bandit-like absolute dictator whose tactics oblige the other nations to constantly pay greater taxes to meet the cost of bigger military establishments and extravagant foreign aid?

The atomic experts tell us that the Soviets will be able to produce atomic weapons by the middle 1950's. Contemplation of the possibilities that will exist if Stalin stays in power until then (he is 69) is appalling. Yet I insist that there will be no war this year. We will discuss next year (1949) in December or January.

Wallace Inflames More in Ink Than He Does in Talks

By MAX HILL

Chicago, Oct. 15 (AP)—Day by day Henry Wallace's campaign accusations have grown more explosive.

Reporters who have flown 7,400 miles in three weeks with the Progressive party's presidential candidate are wondering how much further he will go in the bitterness of his attacks on "big business," "big brass," and "Doo-man and Trewey."

But the blow-torch phrases of his recent speeches seem much more inflaming on paper than they do when Wallace reads them to an audience.

He is not the rabble-rousing type of speaker. He seldom raises his voice to put over a purple punch line. Many a sledge-hammer sentence passes practically unnoticed. He doesn't wave his hands or toss his head.

In fact, so far as intensity of emotions is concerned, Wallace is often an anti-climax at his own rallies.

Many a time William Gailmor, chief fundraiser for the party, gets more applause than the candidate.

Wallace meetings nearly always pursue the same pattern. At first there is group singing. Local candidates and local party leaders make short speeches.

Then comes Gailmor, a New York city radio commentator, black-moustached, glint, professional. He gets the crowd in a good humor with jokes and wisecracks.

And then he tells them that since this is a "people's party" the people have to pay the expense of radio broadcasts, printing leaflets, and so on. He says he knows they have already paid to get in—which is true—but that isn't enough.

High Call for Cash
Gailmor starts high in his ringing call for cash. If it's a large audience, as at Los Angeles or San Francisco, he demands to know who will stand up and say "Count me in for one thousand dollars." In a smaller, poorer audience he may begin with $100 or $50.

Then he gradually works on down to the smaller denominations, keeping up a machine-gun commentary.

Near the end, he asks everybody to take out a one-dollar bill and wave it. He says a photographer wants to get a picture of the demonstration. A goodly proportion of the audience usually complies.

Then Gailmor shouts cheerily, "Now, don't put those bills back in your pockets. If you do, I hope you lose them on the way home. We'll hunt you if you do."

The ushers gather up the bills in bunches.

Finally Gailmor says, "do I hear a demand for a change collection?" He says, "all those who favor a change collection, say aye." Invariably a few people say "aye."

Seldom does anyone vote no. Gailmor then orders a change collection, saying with a smile, "you asked for it. How can I deny you?"

Now comes the speaker of the evening.

Speaks Drunkenly

Wallace comes forward with his mouth open and his teeth showing in a set grin. He waves. The crowd cheers.

Wallace puts on his glasses, and starts reading the script. Solemnly, sometimes drunkenly, he plows on through his denunciations.

The essence of his arguments now runs something like this:

He says there is absolutely no difference between the two old parties, between Truman and Dewey. The often gets a laugh by calling them "Doo-man and Trewey."

He says Wall Street and trigger-happy brass hats have taken over the old parties and the government, and are "driving America toward war" in order to keep prices and profits high.

He says Russia provides "absolutely no threat to our security," but we are threatening Russia with atom bombs and building up Fascism all over the world.

He says a vote for the Progressive Party is the only vote for peace.

When he finishes, he takes off his glasses, grins, nods, and waves again.

It was announced that plans are progressing for presentation of the 1948 version of Kiwanis Kapers next month.

The club had as its guest, Horace A. Chidsey, father of local Kiwanian, R. Frederick Chidsey, who has achieved a perfect attendance record for 22 years.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 15, 1948

RUNNING AGAINST HOOVER

In the present campaign President Truman is leading out in an attack on the Eightieth Congress, and Governor Dewey is emphasizing the need for American unity and cooperation in this time of world-wide crisis.

In the past year or two Democratic critics have lambasted the Republicans for attacking the policies of the late President Roosevelt and stated in other words that the G.O.P. was still making an issue of F.D.R. and running against him.

The kind of campaign Governor Dewey is conducting proves that such charges are unfounded. He is defending the record of the Eightieth Congress in domestic and international affairs and is hewing to the line of the Republican platform.

The New Deal spellbinders from 1932 on have spent a great deal of their time running against President Hoover who has not been in the White House since 1933. Most of the Democratic orators, however, haven't been following this corny line so often during the present campaign. But there are a few of them still at it and one who is still valiantly trying to "beat Herbert Hoover" is Senator Alben Barkley, Democratic candidate for Vice President on the New Deal-Democratic ticket (as distinguished from the Dixie Democratic ticket).

In a speech in Iowa the other evening the Kentucky statesman painted the old story of apple-selling back in 1931 and 1932 in darkest colors, and tried to frighten his hearers into believing that if Governor Dewey is elected President in November we will have the same condition over again.

The argument is corny and outworn. But since there isn't much else to talk about we can't be too severe on Senator Barkley for following the old line. It is easier than trying to defend Truman.

"There are too many cars on the road". Even the most inveterate drivers are beginning to say this as they crawl home during rush hours. They do not, of course, mean that they themselves should leave their cars at home.

NEW ISLANDS

The map of the world is not yet entirely filled in, even in North America. Two new islands have been found in the ice-bound area north of Hudson Bay, the Royal Canadian Air Force reports. One is 85 miles long, a fairly large island to have been overlooked till now, except that the covering of ice makes it hard to tell land from water.

This is not the first time that the Arctic region north of Canada has offered surprises. Not so many years ago the school geographies taught that the northernmost point of North America was Alaska's Point Barrow. Later it was learned that this was surpassed by Boothia Felix, a cape stretching northward in the neighborhood, apparently, of the new islands.

Here, too, one of the world's great quests ends. The Northwest Passage, a water route from the Atlantic to the Pacific, was the goal of seventeenth century explorers like Captain John Smith and Henry Hudson. Looking for a Northwest Passage, the sailors of that time wandered up and down our Atlantic coast, hoping to find a way to the Pacific. Finally in 1905 Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian who later discovered the South Pole, picked his way through these icy waters to the Pacific. It took him two years to do it, thereby proving the route commercially impracticable.

Perhaps still other finds remain to be made in this ill-explored region.

A successful man is one who can carry out five per cent of the good intentions he had when he left school.

PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM

New York is a rich city, but even so cannot do everything that the city government would like to do. One undertaking for which public money is lacking is the purchase of flowering shrubs and trees for the parks, parkways and botanical gardens. An appeal

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

OUT OF THEIR STRENGTH

It is a curious response to the challenges of nearly every era that when man is in the greatest despair, when the hopelessness of fear is most upon him, when others wring their souls in the agony of lost causes, the Jew starts afresh to build. So it is that Israel comes into existence in a year when nations are being killed off and states are being reduced from sovereignty to satellites. And so it is with Brandeis University, which has just been established in Waltham, Mass.

I attended the ceremonies of the founding of Brandeis University and the inauguration of its first president, Abram Leon Sachar. This is the first wholly secular university founded by Jews in this country to be available for faculty and students without regard to race, color or creed. It follows the great American tradition of the founding of universities by religious sects, as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Notre Dame, and many others were so established. It differs from some in that no theological school is attached to it, but a broad humanism inevitably prevails in an atmosphere of a continuing tradition.

At a time when universities are worried about their endowments and when some even advocate turning over to Washington politicians the financing and therefore the ultimate control of institutions of higher learning, these Jewish merchants and businessmen of Boston dare to project a new university, purchase a lovely property for a campus, renovate old buildings, erect new ones, gather a faculty and in about a week the first freshman class will be at work. It is an amazing example of the resilience of the human spirit, of courage, of faith, of belief in the future of mankind. They do not give up.

More than 200 American and foreign universities and learned societies sent delegates to the ceremonies and, of course, there was all the pageantry of academic procession and the color of gowns and hoods. But these really mean very little. What was important on this occasion was the contrast with the despair of Paris, the hopelessness of Berlin, the fear of war. After all, nothing that was done on this particular occasion will bear mature fruit until a generation has passed through its trials.

It will be four years before the first class will be graduated. Under present plans, no graduate or technical school will come into existence at Brandeis sooner than five years from now. The young men and women who now enter will not know for a decade whether Brandeis University really gave them something or wasted their time. And so, while the politicians and soldiers are talking of the defeat and even the destruction of civilization, these men are planting seeds for a new forest of learning. They ignore the ephemeral headlines for the permanence of human growth. They do not worry about being bombed out of existence, for they know that man always builds again.

Louis D. Brandeis represented a complex figure in both American and Jewish life. Born in Louisville, Ky., he studied at Harvard and settled in Boston to practice law. For many years of his life he had been wholly dissociated from the Jews, and at one stage it was even believed that he had left them for other pastures. He became interested in the Zionist Movement after he had made a great success as a lawyer and reached mature years.

Gov. Clements is largely responsible for getting Chapman the senatorial nomination, but when he asked his protégé to support the Democratic platform, Virgil refused.

When President Truman's train came through Kentucky, however, it was a different story. Chapman hung on the President's coat-tails from beginning to end. And all the way across the state, Truman and Gov. Clements begged Chapman to say he would support the Democratic platform.

Each time he refused.

"I will not give up my position as an independent statesman," Chapin kept repeating. "Won't you promise to support Truman?" pleaded Gov. Clements.

"Only when I agree with him," replied the would-be senator, who for once appeared to be cold sober.

"Will you promise to support Barkley?" countered Clements.

"Not even Barkley will ride on Virgil Chapman's coat-tails," replied the congressman.

"All right," shot back the enraged Clements, "If you think you are such a damned statesman just paddle your own canoe from here on out."

Since then Governor Clements has ignored Chapman's campaign.

A Solid Foundation

"ONE FOR ALL - ALL FOR ONE!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Louisville, Ky.—Thanks to the most popular man in Kentucky, Senator Alben Barkley, the Bluegrass State will go for Truman in November. It will not elect a Democratic senator — for two reasons.

1. The Republican Senator, John Cooper, has had a good senatorial record and deserves to be re-elected.

2. The Democratic candidate, frequently unseated Congressman Virgil Chapman, has such a miserable record that many Democrats are getting fed up with him. Thereby hangs some interesting inside history.

Shortly after Congressman Chapman won out in the primaries, a group of labor leaders approached Democratic Governor Earle Clements in Louisville and told him that if he would get Chapman to support the Democratic platform they would give him labor's endorsement.

Gov. Clements is largely responsible for getting Chapman the senatorial nomination, but when he asked his protégé to support the Democratic platform, Virgil refused.

When President Truman's train came through Kentucky, however, it was a different story. Chapman hung on the President's coat-tails from beginning to end. And all the way across the state, Truman and Gov. Clements begged Chapman to say he would support the Democratic platform.

Each time he refused.

"I will not give up my position as an independent statesman," Chapin kept repeating. "Won't you promise to support Truman?" pleaded Gov. Clements.

"Only when I agree with him," replied the would-be senator, who for once appeared to be cold sober.

"Not even Barkley will ride on Virgil Chapman's coat-tails," replied the congressman.

"All right," shot back the enraged Clements, "If you think you are such a damned statesman just paddle your own canoe from here on out."

Since then Governor Clements has ignored Chapman's campaign.

Paris Mediation Fails, but Formal Action Still Has to Be Tried

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 15.—Informal mediation at Paris has failed but formal mediation has yet to be tried. This is the next step and it is difficult to see how either the western powers or the Soviet government can refuse to accede to a mediation offer voted by formal resolution of the United Nations.

What seems puzzling on the surface is that the western powers are reported adamant that they will not negotiate or discuss a four-power conference unless the blockade of Berlin is first lifted, while the Russians are equally firm in their declaration that the proposals on the agenda of the United Nations Security Council must be erased before they will negotiate a settlement of the Berlin blockade and agree to a simultaneous calling of a four-power conference on German questions.

When matters get into this kind of tangle, it is evident that someone in a neutral government has to take the initiative. The Argentine foreign minister, Dr. Juan A. Bramuglia, tried the informal approach. He struck a stone wall on both sides. This was natural, because there was no leverage upon either side to compel a compromise and no urge to a settlement of the outstanding issues because an apparent victory or concession might be involved or conceded.

It was a foregone conclusion, therefore, that informal mediation would get nowhere. As the time for a formal resolution of the mediation draws near, however, certain terms and conditions will have to be laid down by the Security Council present.

If Russia abstains from voting altogether and a mediation resolution proposes that the blockade be lifted simultaneously with the calling of a four-power conference, Russia would come near to the Russian position. It is doubtful whether the technical point that the U. N. itself has proposed such a settlement would be enough to cause the Soviets to reject the settlement, just as it seems improbable that the western powers would stick to their recently added demand that the Berlin blockade must be lifted even before there is an agreement to hold a four-power conference. It is conceivable that each side, in the interest of a settlement, would concede a point in procedure.

While the Western Allies have been talking about requesting a UN resolution which would condemn Russia for having taken in the Berlin blockade a step that is a "threat to peace," it is doubtful whether a resolution of condemnation would actually aid in bringing about a settlement.

Russia would take offense at that kind of resolution and remove herself still further from any possible area of agreement. If the Western Allies wish to force a showdown or a climax, the contemporary resolution is the natural maneuver, but world opinion, especially in the smaller countries, will not go along with the idea of a resolution condemning Russia as a "threat to peace" unless some formal mediation has been attempted and has failed.

It would seem, therefore, that the Western Allies have more to gain than lose by going along with a formal resolution proposing a plan of mediation and terms of settlement. If Russia goes on record as rejecting such mediation as a "threat to peace," a formal mediation plan may come as the next move before the Security Council.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Oct. 14.—The hateful propaganda against "the high brass" and "the big brass" of the American Army and Navy which began almost on the dot of V-E Day—as soon as Russia was absolutely rescued from Hitler—was touched off and stimulated by the Communists. Many of them were planted as officers in the publicity and morale sections of the service. They concocted "moral" pamphlets and doctored diagrams to show that Roosevelt's union racketeers, for all their disgraceful record of strikes, malingering, loafing, whistle-jumping and overtime profiteering, had done as well as the war as men who had been killed in action. These planted propagandists hatched "injury doctrine" courses to disarm the real Americans, the fighters, of their natural, honest hatred of the Bolshevik dictatorship and persuaded them that anyone who uttered any suspicion of Communism was doing "Hitler's" work. Men who should have stopped work, but didn't want to, sat in the Pentagon in Washington and let it go on. The quietest of these were members of the cult of Harvard law, the main source of the brutal cynicism which became the philosophy of our government after 1933.

"Brass" is a cheap cliché affected by blackguards and fakers of journalism and the radio who cannot write and crib their paltry bromides from Fui Pi-Yu's time-style. It came out of the old British army and with some tarnish on it, at that. Their generals were brave, stately and imperious but slow and had little imagination.

Any attempt to redress the reputation of the American officers.

Soldiers Save Cash, Charter Plane for Furloughs in East

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Thrift paid off today for 50 young soldiers stationed in Texas who wanted to spend their first 10-day furloughs home in the East.

They saved their basic training money and chartered a plane for $2,500 round-trip — $150 apiece.

The happy group arrived at La Guardia Field early today aboard a 1944 American Airlines plane after taking off last night from Temple, Tex.

Most of the soldiers are 18 and 19-year-olds training at Camp Hood. The newcomers included men from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Washington, D. C., and New York.

They all look forward to some home cooking, and three said they plan to be married during furlough.

The three are Frank Scioff and Jerry Jacobs, both of New York City, and Leon Deyette, of Hudson Falls, N. Y. Scioff and Jacobs hope to make it a double ceremony.

The soldiers, serving one-year enlistments, gave credit for the cashed-in idea to three Manhattanites who were aboard the plane: Frank Deshpinto, Charles Reynolds and Ralph Cassieri.

Judy Roberts and Rosemary Waters, both of Dallas, Tex., stewards aboard the plane, agreed that the 50 furlough-happy passengers are the liveliest they ever encountered.

"They're a fine bunch of boys," said Miss Waters.

Among the others aboard were Joseph Jones, of Avon, Pa.; Joseph Conner, of 256 Royal Avenue, Monaca, L. I.; Vincent Petros, of 93 Claremont Avenue, Brooklyn; and Joseph Palazzo, of 418 East 116th Street.

To time with the trend to make things cheap, the 50 soldiers departed at the field 10 minutes after the plane landed.

They will fly back on the chartered plane October 25.

Berlin: World's No. 1 Bogey

(This is the third and last of a series written by the Associated Press staff in Berlin to back-ground and illuminate the Berlin crisis.)

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Berlin, Oct. 15 (AP)—The political battle for Berlin has divided this city into belligerent Communist and anti-Communist camps.

So sharp has this division become, as a result of recent Communist attempts to gain power by force, that Berlin virtually has become two cities—East and West.

It is a city with two rival currencies, two rival police forces, two rival trade union federations, two city assembly chambers, and a sharply divided press.

The German population of 3,250,000 recognizes that it all boils down to East vs. West. Most of them have been told enough in these months of the blockade crisis to choose for the West, however precarious the West's geographic position may appear in this island city behind the Iron Curtain.

The western two-thirds of Berlin—occupied by the United States, Britain and France—is the stronghold of the anti-Communist front of three political parties.

Under Political Control

Its eastern sector, occupied by the Russians, is under the political control of the minority Socialist Unity Party (Communist). The anti-Communists won 80 per cent of the votes in Berlin's first and only postwar election in October, 1946, and control the legally recognized German municipal government.

They are eager to face the electorate for a renewed mandate at any time, confident they can deal the Communists an even more smashing defeat in a fair ballot.

The Russian-backed Communists, however, are opposing new elections. All their efforts in the past months of crisis have been directed toward overthrowing the elected government, by pressure and seizing full political and economic control for themselves.

The Socialists, who led in the 1946 election with 48.7 per cent of the total vote, formed a municipal government in which the Communists got a minority position consistent with their showing.

Thereupon the Communists, with Russian backing through the four-power allied kommandatura, undertook what American authorities described as a "persistent ham-stringing operation."

When this failed to break the Socialist regime or undermine public confidence in it, the Communists tried a new tack—overthrow.

The force tactics in Berlin came to a head this summer, while the elected government was trying to administer a city two-thirds of which was crippled under the Russian blockade of land transport.

The Communists launched their assault with riotous demonstrations by "protesting workers" who stormed into the city hall, located in the Soviet sector of the city, and took over the city parliament's chambers. The Russian-controlled police refused to stop them.

Result: The elected parliament could not meet. In its places sat organized Communist demonstrators, shouting for adoption of a Communist program which would place all Berlin under Red political and economic control.

Flee to British Sector

The legal parliament, after pleading in vain for Russian guarantees of protection for its meetings, fled to the British sector of the city. Since then Communist members have boycotted all meetings.

The magistrat (executive branch of the city government) which had been in the city hall in the Soviet sector, also is newly split. It has moved to the British sector after a sitdown strike by a Communist official who refused to accept his dismissal.

The Communists have whittled away its power in the Russian sector of the city. Several hundred non-Communist appointees in eastern Berlin have already been ousted from their jobs and replaced by Communists.

Recently, Kurt Landberg, Christian Democratic leader in the city parliament, called for outright formation of a separate western Berlin government.

If it came to that, the Russians undoubtedly would sponsor a separate government, in name as well as fact, for eastern Berlin. The nucleus for this already is at hand. It is the Communist-controlled, so-called "Democratic Bloc of Berlin," which now is meeting in the old city assembly chambers. This group, containing only splinter elements of non-Communist parties, has been dismissed by anti-Communist leaders as "a propaganda organization with no public support."

Against these Communist force tactics the anti-Communists have publicly staged protests. The greatest of these was a mass meeting September 9 which attracted approximately 250,000 people—the greatest gathering in postwar Germany. It was followed by rioting in which Russian soldiers and Soviet-controlled German police were attacked and stoned.

Thereupon the Russian-controlled press attacked the anti-Communist leaders as "warmongers."

Newspaper War

As hot as Berlin's political strife is its newspaper war. This has developed to such a pitch that the Russians have banned western-licensed German newspapers from their sector of the city and succeeded to arrest any one caught reading them. The Communists made their embargo through a distribution monopoly.

In reprisal, German newsdealers of western Berlin established a counter-boycott, refusing to sell Russian-licensed newspapers.

The western-licensed newspapers—undoubtedly the most popular in town with German readers—have anti-Communist editorial policies. But in their news columns give space to both sides of the Berlin controversy and unhesitatingly criticized western policies.

The Russian-controlled press, however, lays down a non-stop propaganda barrage against the west. This ranges from vitriolic attacks upon the European Recovery Program to libelous diatribes against Americans' conduct in Berlin. The official Red army organ "Tugliche Rundschau" daily runs its reports on the American sector of the city under a standing headline: "Reports from the gangster sector."

Monti Is Charged With Treason; Say He Aided Germans

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—A former Air Force lieutenant was charged with treason Thursday in a federal grand jury indictment which alleged he gave himself up to the Germans and subsequently broadcast for the Nazis.

Named in the indictment was former Lieutenant Martin J. Monti, 27, of Florissant, Mo. He has been held in the Federal House of Detention here since last January 26 when he was discharged from service at Mitchell Field.

Special Assistant Attorney General Victor Voorheide said the indictment, listing 21 alleged acts, charged that Monti gave himself and his plane up to the Germans in Italy between October 13, 1944 and May 8, 1945 after going AWOL in Karachi, India.

The indictment alleged that Monti volunteered his services to the Germans, was released as a prisoner of war and broadcast for the Nazis from Berlin.

Martin Weithaupt. Subsequently, the indictment charges, Monti became an officer in the S.S. Elite Guard.

After the Nazi capitulation, the indictment said, Monti made his way to Italy and joined the Fifth Army.

Military authorities returned him to the United States and he was court-martialed for the theft of the plane and desertion. A 15-year prison sentence was remitted and he was allowed to reenlist as a private. When he was arrested last January he had advanced to sergeant.

When Monti was arrested his father Martin A. Monti, Jr., said that his son told him during a visit to St. Louis that the Nazis threatened him while a prisoner and "I let them think I had become a Nazi. After all, they had the guns."

Conviction on the charges carries penalties ranging from five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine to death.

Talk on Dyeing Methods Is Heard By Home Bureau

Woodstock, Oct. 15—Edith A. Roberts, one of Woodstock's foremost craftsmen, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Home Bureau Tuesday afternoon at the American Legion Building.

A founder of the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen, Edith Roberts is as well known for spinning and weaving as for her textile printing. Christmas cards are her specialty but she also raises Angora rabbits for hand spinning and weaving baby blankets and scarves. In her talk Tuesday, she stressed color and described various methods of dyeing and displayed samples of various pieces which had been submitted to different treatments.

This craftsman has recently perfected a new dyeing technique, about which an article appeared in a recent publication of Craft Horizons. Therein a complete description of vat dyes is given. Having found that vat dyes were the best for the process, the second phase of the problem was to determine whether they could be used in small quantities in silk screen printing to produce the appearance of batik," writes Edith Roberts in her article.

This process was also described to the Home Bureau members and the speaker continued outlining the batik process when she said, "The batik process is well known. Wax is used to paint out all those areas which are not to receive a given color. Whenever a new color is to be used, wax must be painted over the portions which are to remain the first color and the material dipped again in the next color. This is a long process for any extensive article and makes the cost prohibitive. It was necessary, therefore to work out a substitute resistant for wax which could be used in a silk screen stencil. The result should be called 'resist stenciling' as it cannot be called true batik."

A transparent base that had been used successfully with poster colors, as a resist for silk screening on cloth proved after numerous trials to be best. This base should be thinned with a reducer so that the fabric will absorb it. As this will not penetrate to the under side of very heavy material it is best to use a fairly thin textile. The resist is applied as in any screening process.

The various steps he followed in the dyeing were set forth and Mrs. Roberts explained how to prepare the dye and she said, "The exact amount is determined by the color and experience will soon tell when this is reached. In fact, much of the dye process must become instinctive as a result of many experiments, for the color of the dyed material is never that of the dye itself and can only be seen when it is taken out of the bath and exposed to the air. Material can be taken out and then redipped to deepen, though never to lighten, the color. When this is done it should all be kept under the surface and moved about. If it is taken out, wrung, and returned to the dye bath, several times the shade will be more even."

It was learned that dyeing is more even if the temperature of the bath is at about 80 degrees Fahrenheit when the material is first put in the bath and then gradually increased. The importance of proper temperatures in the procedure was discussed at some length, and proper equipment given, as well as names of chemical companies where supplies might be obtained. Before the meeting adjourned, a short discussion was had about the making of plastic bags which will one of the Bureau's projects this winter. Several members signed up for this course.

The members were reminded that dues should now be paid to the treasurer.

Pitching Horseshoes

By Billy Rose

This is a story about an anomaly, and an anomaly, Junior, is a "deviation from the rule"—like a waiter who won't take tips, or a girl who has no use for silver blue mink.

The other day I heard about an anomaly in Brooklyn that sounded like column material, and so I sauntered to Flatbush and dropped in to see State Senator Louis B. Heller. Heller, in case you don't know, is the author of New York's Anti-Desecration Bill which makes it possible for the police to prosecute the bilge-brains who chalk dirty names on synagogues and churches.

As I entered his law office, the Senator was watering a small potted plant on his desk.

"I didn't know you went in for horticulture," I said.

"It's a shamrock," said the Senator, "and it was given me as a fee."

"That's an anomaly enough for any man's column," I said. "How about giving me the plot behind the plant, petal by petal?"

"Well," Heller began, "twelve years ago a Brooklyn lawyer named Raymond J. Riley was accused by a woman client of forging her signature and unlawfully cashing a check for $235.28. Riley pleaded that the signature was genuine and that the woman was trying to beat him out of a fee, but he was found guilty and given a suspended sentence. This automatically barred him from practicing law."

His funds exhausted by the case, the only way Riley could make himself heard was to take a job as waiter in a restaurant near the courthouse, serving the same judges and lawyers he'd previously hobnobbed with. But after a while his pleadings began to annoy the customers, and when they complained, he was fired.

Two years ago, shabby, run-down and on his last legs, he came to my office and begged me to help him. There was something about him that I liked, so I agreed to look into his case.

"Well, it wasn't an easy job. The woman who had accused him of forgery refused to change her story, and, after ten years, the witnesses were difficult to contact and almost impossible to check on. I was about to give his case to the cat when I noticed a reference in the court record to a handwriting expert named Elbridge W. Stein, who had been scheduled to testify for the State but was never called to the witness stand. This puzzled me."

"I made an appointment to see Stein and took Riley along, and sure enough, my client identified him as a man he had seen conferring with the Assistant District Attorney on the day of the trial. Finally the whole story came out. Stein had informed the Assistant D.A.—a chap named Ed Kelly—that the signature on the check was unquestionably the woman's, but the prosecutor, anxious to get a conviction, had hustled him out of a side entrance."

"I tried to get in touch with Kelly, but I was informed that he had gone soft in the head and died in a sanitarium. Suppression of evidence by a State officer was all we needed to make our point, and Judge Carmine J. Marasco handed down a decision reversing Riley's conviction. This happened the afternoon before St. Patrick's Day—just in time for my client to march in the parade—and in honor of the occasion, a Riley presented a Heller with a shamrock."

"Nice story," I said, "but what was your honest-injun reason for doing all that work for Riley?"

"A long time ago, when I was a kid, I broke my nose playing football in Prospect Park. The referee put me in a cab and took me to a hospital, and when I was patched up, he brought me home and explained things to my mother. Naturally, I was grateful and promised him that if I was ever in a position to square things, I would."

"The referee's name, I take it, was Raymond J. Riley," the Senator nodded.

"Good thing ending," I said.

"So if you like," said Heller, "but I think I ought to tell you it isn't true. You see, when the reporters asked me why I defended Riley, I was afraid the truth would sound corny, and so I told them the first story that popped into my head. The truth is that Riley impressed me as a square guy who had gotten a bad deal, and I wanted to help him out—but I don't suppose you'd care to use that when you write the story. The trick finish undoubtedly has a lot more punch than the facts."

"I'm not so sure," I said. "When an Irishman, unjustly convicted by another Irishman, is defended by a Jewish lawyer and cleared by an Italian judge on St. Patrick's Day, and when the Irishman presents the Jew with a shamrock for a fee—well, it's at least a photo-finish between truth and fiction for first place."

"It'll be interesting to see which one you use," said the Senator as he poured a little more water into the flower pot.

cris, and especially of those above the rank of captain and lieutenant-commander, runs hard against the fact that Roosevelt, who cheapened and befouled every fine thing that he touched, immediately made rank cheap. Bill Knudsen, a great manufacturer, was induced to accept the three stars of a lieutenant-general, formerly reserved for good commanders of American armies in war. Nobody made fun of Mr. Knudsen but many who admired him felt sorry for him because he plainly felt ridiculous. Thereafter, Roosevelt and his friends tossed out constellations of cheap stars. On winter mornings in Washington, in the crowded buses going down-town, bag-eyed tired generals, a few months out of civilian clothes, lurched against sleepy enlisted men going to work. The buck-general or brigadier, actually far less prestige here than a buck-sergeant had had in normal times.

Officers of the regular army had their own sentiments about this. A man put in years of patriotic soldiering, always loyal to the beautiful ideal and code of West Point. At 55 or so, he found himself still a colonel or lieutenant-colonel while the fellow hanging to a strap in the same bus were one or two stars pinned on him only to permit him to out-rank other ex-civilians in financial or legal negotiations in the Pentagon.

Presidents and well-placed relatives of Hollywood magnates who always made pretty short of Roosevelt's polo parties and made him look noble in the news-reels, wound up colonel. A speaker, man became a grandiose mess-servant with eagles on his boards, whipping up souffles for the brass.

There it is, "brass." Well, damn it, that is what I am coming to. We did have some generals and admirals who took their cue from our emperor with his notions of imperial privilege and luxury. They did surround themselves with luxury and the services of obsequious waiters and knew that as long as they stayed with the high "brass" they wouldn't go into the line. And, after victory in Europe, the wild campaign began against a "band" of the "brass" to keep them in the service so that these officers, keep their rank and perquisites. This was something to do, but it didn't exist in there was to be. Actually, it would have been wise to keep strong by maintaining the hard, efficient outfit which had just knocked out the toughest army in history. Instead, the army against the "brass" rose to a level of lunatic. Eisenhower was exasperated, largely but not solely because he had been a hand-washing subordinate to Roosevelt, who liked them obsequious. Patton, on the other hand, though not above a little of that, felt a little of the conspiracy to infect our whole army of occupation with hateful naturalized immigrant Americans adorned with unearned military rank and to destroy any real American who had the moral courage to try to avoid a repetition of reconstruction in the fallen confederacy. Many of the finest individual citizens who ever served a republic were "brass" in this war. Their code, and many of them did live up to it scrupulously, was the statement of idealism ever adopted by any corps outside the consecrated orders of religion, and much more practical.

If we hadn't had the finest "brass" in the world, the best generals and admirals, both in planning and in fighting, we would never have come off the floor to win.

Ugly remarks about General George C. Marshall should always be taken with a personal inner reminder that for all his servility to Roosevelt and his one awful failure on Pearl Harbor day, Marshall has spent all his life serving his country. When the war ended and he stepped down from his job of chief of staff, he could have taken his pension and gone off fishing. He could have retired to read, to rest and live on a pension of about $25,000 a year—we hardly could get better than that—and told us all to go to hell. A man of his age at retirement can calculate the years that he will have the legs under him to permit him to walk and go and enjoy life. Marshall has given us five of those precious years already. Why, then, do we offer "brass," anyway, to keep them interested in the wretched job of sacrificing themselves for us? Copyright, 1948, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Says System Loses

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Third Avenue Transit System is losing about $50,000 a month more under a recently granted 6-cent fare than it was losing when the fare was a nickel, a system official declared yesterday. Mortimer S. Gordon, chairman of the board of the system's companies, said the increased losses were caused mainly by the pay raise of 24 cents an hour granted to the 3,900 employees late in September. The system, Gordon said, has not been able to find a way to finance payment of more than $1,000,000 of retroactive pay raises to its employees.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

All bridge players talk about the peculiar things that happen in their game, whether it is in a little afternoon bridge club or in a world championship event. Perhaps one of the strangest things ever played in a world championship match took place in Chicago last August.

It, W. Halpin, of Chicago, one of the organizers of the American Auction Bridge League, was paired up with Oswald Jacoby, of Dallas, Tex. You can imagine Halpin's surprise when he found himself playing a contract of six hearts in the final round of the world championship team-of-four contest, without a heart in his hand.

Jacoby's bid of four no trump was the Blackwood bid asking Halpin to show aces. With one ace Halpin would have bid five diamonds. With two aces he was forced to bid five hearts—and Jacoby bid six hearts.

One of the strangest things about it was that the clubs had been divided three-three, or if Jacoby had held the seven of spades instead of the four-spot the contract could have been made. With the clubs divided three-three, Halpin could have established his clubs, picked up the hearts, and then discarded spades on the clubs, losing only one spade trick. And he would have lost only one spade trick if Jacoby had had the seven instead of the four of spades.

The loss of this match gave the eastern team consisting of George Rupee, Howard Schenken and Samuel Stayman of Atlanta the world championship team-of-four title. The Chicago team of Arthur Glatz, R. W. Halpin, Ralph Kemper, Jules Bank and Oswald Jacoby had to be satisfied with second place.

Bow Hunting Banned
Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—Long bow hunting has been banned on preserves owned by three northern New York sportsmen clubs. Members believe deer would only be wounded by the arrows and the animals would get away, either to die or be crippled. John Dadds of Potsdam, president of the Inlet Outing Club, said yesterday. Archery hunting also was banned on the preserves of the Sylvan Falls and Indian Lake clubs. A special deer and bear season for archers opened in the Adirondacks October 5. It ends next Wednesday when the regular firearm season begins.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 15 (AP)—Jack Carroll, 24, a crooner, who won a nationwide talent show was taken to the hospital last night suffering from internal injuries after being mobbed by autograph seekers as he left a broadcast in New York. He collapsed in a taxi on the way home to Belleville and was taken to Columbus Hospital, where his condition was listed as serious. Ed Lee, associate producer of the Mutual Broadcasting System's talent jackpot show, said Carroll won the show for seven weeks in a row and had returned last night for a guest appearance.

Man, 21, Is Held In Rape Slaying Of Aged Woman

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—An unemployed young Negro was booked on a homicide charge early today for the knife and strangulation slaying of an 80-year-old Brooklyn spinster.

Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. MacDonald said the prisoner, Walter Davis, 21, admitted he stabbed Miss Mary Gray in her small top-floor apartment early last Saturday, but denied he raped her.

A medical examiner reported an autopsy showed the woman had been raped.

The district attorney said a woman who was stabbed, beaten and robbed in a deserted Brooklyn subway station late at night two weeks before the slaying identified Davis as her assailant last night.

She is Miss Emma Baywell, 35. Davis did not admit this attack. MacDonald said Davis apparently ly was bent on robbery when he crept from a fire escape into Miss Gray's apartment in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

The prisoner, MacDonald said, would not tell why he went into the house, but related that the frail and aged woman fought him, and he put his hand over her mouth and stabbed her with his penknife several times.

Davis was arrested yesterday on secret information after more than 200 police and detectives had combed a wide area of Brooklyn and questioned score of men.

Man Is Identified
The prosecutor said Davis was identified as the slayer by Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, first-floor resident of the house at 17 Madison street where the spinster lived. Mrs. O'Reilly had ordered a Negro prowler off the porch a short time before Miss Gray's last screams were heard.

MacDonald said that after questioning Davis, police recovered his blood-stained clothing from a dry cleaner's and found the penknife in a rear yard near the scene of the slaying.

The prosecutor said Davis is a parolee from Hampton Farms, a state correctional institution, where he was sent on a pickpocket conviction.

MacDonald said Davis told his mother, Mrs. Mary Davis, and his sister, Mrs. Viola Gibson, about the Gray slaying shortly after it was committed.

Davis, an unemployed trucker's helper, has been living with his parents at 8 Monroe street, almost directly behind Miss Gray's home.

Miss Barwell, of 1284, Dean street, Brooklyn, who was attacked in a subway station in Brooklyn early on Sept. 23, suffered a fractured jaw, a knife gash on a hand and shock in a battle with her assailant. Her purse, containing a small amount of money, was reported missing.

In 1785 Massachusetts imposed a tax of two-thirds of a penny on newspapers.

A senator once delivered a speech in a Swedish community of northern Minnesota. Although he gave what he considered one of his greatest addresses, he was disappointed by the utter lack of enthusiasm from his audience.

When he sat down, another speaker arose and addressed the audience in Swedish. His words were received with thunderous applause. The grateful senator also applauded lustily. Then he turned to the chairman. "What was that fellow talking about? He certainly went over well."

The chairman replied dryly, "He was merely translating your Swedish into English so the audience could understand." Successful Farming.

Aunt: "Thank you, but I wish you would have brought me one of those Latin quarters I read so much about."

Jack: "Do you play any musical instrument?"

Jack: "Only at home."

Jack: "What do you play there?"

Jack: "Second fiddle."

Once upon a time there was a boy penguin and a girl penguin who met at the Lagoon.

After a brief but charming interlude, the boy penguin went north to the North Pole; the girl penguin went south to the South Pole.

Later on, a telegram arrived at the North Pole, stating simply: "Come quick—I am with Byrd."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—The stock market coasted along at a slightly lower price level today.

A long list of key issues were marked down fractionally immediately after the opening bell but sufficient support soon developed to keep the market on an even keel.

Trading was considerably slower than yesterday when nearly 1,000,000 shares changed hands.

Today's small stumbling block in the way of an October rally was regarded without much concern in the financial district. A sustained advance, it was explained, is rarely a one-way proposition and occasional setbacks must be expected.

Issues lower included Chrysler, Studebaker, Bethlehem Steel, International Investor, American Telephone, Consolidated Natural Gas, Corp. de Pasco, American Can, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, American Woolen, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Texas Co., Pacific Western Oil, and American Airlines.

Five Bombers Are Backbone of U.S. Alaskan Defense

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—The United States' air defense in Alaska this winter apparently will consist of five bombers and one group of about 75 fighters.

Down at the other side of the American defense perimeter, the Panama Canal zone, there presently is no organized air combat unit.

This came to light today in connection with an air force announcement that three five-plane flights of the new B-50 bombers will rotate on training missions in Alaska between November 1 and March 15. Under this program, only five of the bombers will be in the area at any one time.

The only other combat unit in the Polar frontier sector is the fighter group regularly stationed there.

However, air force defense planning is based on the idea that both fighters and bombers can be flown to Alaska quickly if a sudden military menace developed.

The forthcoming missions of the B-50s will be the first such bombers have made in organized units to any point outside the continent.

The B-50 is a radically changed version of the wartime B-29. It has a top speed of 400 miles an hour, a 10-ton bomb capacity and, the air force says, can reach targets "over 2,300 miles" from the take-off point.

While B-50s have been in use by the air force for several months, they never have been flown under Arctic conditions. This, said the air force, is the purpose of the training missions to Alaska, including studies to get the long-range out of the planes through fuel-conservation technique.

Similar training was conducted last winter with the B-29s.

Air force officials told a reporter they are unable to discuss future plans for air defense of the Panama Canal. But available information shows that no fighter, bomber or troop carrier units now are based in the canal zone.

The 36th Fighter Wing—an outfit equipped with 75 F-80 jet fighters—left Panama in August for transfer to Germany to reinforce the single fighter group there.

Later the air force started moving out a troop carrier group at Panama, sending most of it to Germany. Recently, headquarters of the group was ordered transferred to the Smyrna (Tenn.) air force base, and the final squadron of the 36-plane group left.

The air force in the Panama Canal Zone now consists of small units of light liaison planes, an air-base rescue organization, a weather observation unit and a photo reconnaissance outfit.

The big force of bombers and fighters that guarded the canal during wartime has been whittled down steadily, especially since Panama refused to renew American leases on air fields in the republic.

However, a report to Congress in February by the Canal Zone governor and a high-ranking group of military and atomic experts said the canal would be vulnerable to attack by modern weapons regardless of how many bases the United States maintained for its defense.

to drive the allies out of Berlin.

Clay said "during the past year we have seen the rise of democratic forces throughout western Europe. In Italy, France, Finland, in Germany . . . there is a growing consciousness of the value of the rights and freedom of the individual."

"As that increases, as the ability of western Europe to develop itself increases, with the consequent pressure in the satellite countries to return to the way of political freedom, as that comes about, Soviet expansion will not only be halted, it will recede."

"The various pressures that are inherent in the wishes of the people of Europe will become so great they cannot be resisted."

Clay flew to Frankfurt today to confer with John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs advisor to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and member of the American delegation to the United Nations. Clay and Ambassador Robert Murphy, his political advisor, also will meet with German officials.

Property and Auto Damaged in Crash

Arrested after his automobile struck a building on North Front street early today, George M. Hard, 50, of Woodstock, pleaded innocent to a charge of driving while intoxicated and his case was adjourned for two weeks by City Judge Matthew V. Cahill.

According to the police report of the accident, Hard was driving west on North Front street about 1:15 a. m. today when he lost control of his automobile. The automobile struck an electric light pole in front of 79 North Front street, knocked down a parking meter and then ran into the building at 89 North Front street, police said.

The building, owned by Philip Adachefsky, received a cracked window and window panel and some damage to its brick siding, police said. The automobile, a 1940 Hudson sedan, was badly damaged about its front end and had to be towed away, according to the report.

The accident was investigated by Patrolmen Leonard Ellsworth and Raymond Wells, who placed Hard under arrest. Hard was released on $500 bail with surety.

Carrier pigeons were used by newspapers to carry news in the early 1800s.

ment can be. You rose up and threw it out and you know how good government can be."

Dewey, greeted by police-estimated crowd of 30,000 persons who lined the streets on his arrival, announced 6,000 persons failed to get into the auditorium.

Dewey took something of a new tack in his Kansas City speech. He flailed away at President Truman's associates as well as what he calls the "tired" and "confused" administration.

No Magic Formula

Without naming anybody the Republican nominee declared:

"There is no magic formula for competent administration. But one thing is certain. You will never get it when positions of high authority go to men simply because they tell funny stories or because they are somebody's old friends or because they are supposed to have special influence over some big vote."

Dewey paid his indirect respects to President Truman's complaint that it is hard to get good men to work for the government.

Asserting there is no "team work" in the Democratic administration, he said:

"When everybody calls the signals and nobody carries the ball—when that happens, it is no wonder that so few able men are willing to serve on the team."

Tomorrow he goes to Indianapolis, Ind., for a campaign talk in the district of Rep. Charles Halleck, House Republican floor leader.

Cab Fares Are Going Up

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Taxicab fares are going up if a bill presented to the City Council yesterday goes through. Introduced at the request of Mayor William O'Dwyer, the proposed law would boost taxi rates to 25 cents for the first one-fifth of a mile and five cents for each additional one-fifth. Present fares are 20 cents for the first quarter-mile and five cents for each added quarter.

Under the bill, the annual license fee for taxicab owners would be jumped from $10 to $100. Owners and operators asked for the fare rise last April, citing increased costs.

The total area of the United States exceeds 3,000,000 square miles.

ject and brought it into "politics."

"I can assure you," Mr. Truman said, "that the Civilian Atomic Energy Commission has maintained the leadership and responsibility of the United States in atomic weapons—despite the presence of what the Republican candidate for president is pleased to call the 'dead hand' of government."

He said the fission of a single pound of uranium releases as much energy as the burning of three million pounds of coal.

"I believe that atomic energy should not be used to fatten the profits of big business," Mr. Truman continued.

"The largest private corporation in the world is far too small to be entrusted with such power. Least of all for its own profit. Most responsible business men know this. Men who know what atomic energy means do not talk about the 'dead hand' of government."

He said that while it is necessary to have public ownership and control there has been "effective teamwork" with private enterprise in atomic energy development.

Of the military aspects, he said the United States still wants atomic energy placed under international control, but he added:

"The fearful power of atomic weapons must be placed beyond the reach of any irresponsible government or any power-mad dictator."

Mr. Truman returns to Washington Saturday afternoon. He will depart again Monday by plane for Miami and an address to the American Legion. Tuesday, he speaks in Raleigh, N. C. He will wind up his campaign with talks at Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, New York, Brooklyn and St. Louis.

Good Taste Today

TO WOMEN TRAVELING IN ALL-COACH TRAINS

There seems to be widespread interest in the following question: "In the all-coach trains, where one sleeps at night in the same seat one occupied by day but is not separated from other people, may a woman change into a negligee or housecoat to keep her dress from looking slept in?"

A negligee of the casually covering or bedroom variety would not do at all, but to change into a simple cotton dress or slacks with jacket would be very suitable.

Removing Used Plates

Dear Mrs. Post: At the end of a course, whose plate should be removed first? Or is there no rule for removing the way there is for serving?

Answer: The rule goes no further than removing plates of guests first rather than of the family. Even this is not a strict rule.

Taking Young Man's Arm

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm a high school girl and would like to know whether or not a girl of my age takes a boy's arm? Or is that reserved for older women?

Answer: You may take a boy's arm should you ever really need his help, which very likely is seldom, or if you are afraid of becoming separated from him in a crowd.

Announcing Engagement During Bereavement

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) May an engagement be announced even though one of the parents has died shortly before this time? (2) How long should the couple wait to be married?

Answer: (1) Friends and relatives may be told and notice sent to the society editor of your daily paper. A few friends even might be invited to a small gathering, but there should be no large party. (2) If wedding plans had been made, they may be carried out almost immediately if the wedding is very small. A big wedding taking place sooner than six months would seem to be lacking in loyalty and feeling.

Mrs. Post's leaflet, "Wedding Invitations and Announcements," E-10, describes the wording of an invitation when the bride-to-be has no relatives. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and stamped self-addressed envelope to her, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station C, New York 19, N. Y. Fire Chief Speaks

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy was guest speaker to the Business and Professional Girls Club of the Y.W.C.A. Wednesday night. He emphasized that fire usually strikes without warning and there are 13 common causes of house fires although there are hundreds of ways in which fires may be caused.

Firemen when they are called never know what to expect since each fire is different, the fire chief pointed out. Human life is of first importance in starting to battle a fire, he said. Being a fireman is oftentimes a dangerous profession since he is subject to being overcome by gas fumes as well as injured in other ways.

Mr. Murphy paid tribute to volunteer firemen of Kingston who give much needed assistance when necessary. Mr. Murphy demonstrated how an extinguisher should be used and spoke of the good and bad effects of different gases on fire.

In conclusion he answered many questions. Next week the speaker will be Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk on the topic, "The Recreation Department." Girls planning to attend are asked to make reservations by Monday at 5:30 p. m.

Women's Club Program

The Women's Club of the Y.W.C.A. gave an ovation to Adele Neff, imitator, who entertained with a number of character sketches at the meeting Thursday afternoon. She was particularly interesting to the women because she portrayed so many characters which are familiar in everyday life.

Her sketches included Typical American Family at 7:30 a. m.; Two Scenes concerning a blind date; New England Old Maid; At Clinic; Office of a Child Specialist when a grandmother takes her grandchild; Three Wives and How They Treated Their Husbands followed by What They Thought of Them After They Were Gone; Three Generations of Elizabeth Elizabeth Wayne; Gentlemen of the Conception of an Open Meeting of the Women's Club; and Conclusion depicting different types of people met on a street.

During the short business meeting at which Mrs. R. R. Gross, president, presided, new members and guests were welcomed. During the reports it was stated that the club sent two girls for a week at camp this summer. A fashion show will be held in March under the chairmanship of Mrs. Parker K. Bunniere.

The 20th anniversary party of the club will be held in January. On December 16, the Music Appreciation and Drama Groups will present "The Gypsy Noel" at the First Baptist Church. The play was written by Mrs. Gross. Tea was served with Mrs. Raymond Craft pouring. Hostesses were Mrs. Raymond Woodard, Mrs. Lester Barth and Mrs. R. H. D. Boerker.

A social service all day meeting will be held at the Y November 11. Reservations for lunch should be made with Mrs. Clarence L. Dunn.

Concert Pianist Lauded for South American Tour

The gifted young pianist, Byron Janis, who will give a concert at Kingston High School Auditorium, Monday at 8:30 p. m. for the Kingston Community Concert Association, comes to Kingston with recommendations and praise from many critics. This week Richard O. Gruver, city editor of The Freeman, received a personal letter from John H. Steinway, advertising manager of Steinway and Sons, New York, and chairman of the Bard College board of trustees, recommending "the up-and-coming young pianist."

Press notices from South America acclaim Janis as "possessing all the qualities which can be expected from an artist of any age." The 19-year-old pianist toured South America this spring. At Buenos Aires where the seating capacity in the concert hall is 3,000, the crowd gave him a "delirious ovation with twelve curtain calls."

Janis will give his New York Carnegie Hall Recital October 29. His major orchestral dates already booked for the season include solos with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra, three appearances in March 1949; soloist with Erich Leinsdorf and the Rochester Philharmonic, three appearances, November and December; and soloist with Victor Allessandro and the Oklahoma State Symphony, November 1948.

Admission to the concert is by membership card only. Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, 274 Clinton avenue, is membership chairman. The program which he will play in Kingston includes Bach's Organ Prelude and Fugue in A Minor as arranged by Franz Liszt; Sonata in D minor, Opus 31, No. 2, Beethoven; Impromptu in E flat major, Schuber; Two Songs without Words, B. flat major and G major, Mendelssohn; Scherzo in E minor, Mendelssohn; Etude Opus 8, No. 11, Scriabin; Toccata, Opus 11, Prokofiev; four selections by Chopin, Nocturne in C minor, Opus 48, No. 1 Mazurka in C sharp minor, Etude in F major, Opus 25, No. 3 and Etude in C minor, Opus 10 No. 12.

Three Preludes by Debussy, Bruyeres, La Puerta del vino, and General Lavine-Eccentric; Sonetto del Petrarca No. 104, Liszt; and Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6, Liszt.

Stable Formula Desired

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—The Dairymen's League Cooperative Association wants a "long-time, stable milk pricing formula," that will reflect changing production costs. In a resolution adopted yesterday at the closing session of its 29th annual membership meeting, the league contended that the pricing system used under federal-state order in the New York milk shed did not provide properly for changing expenses. The resolution urged that it be replaced by a formula that "fully recognized the cost of labor and feed, 'consumed purchasing power of milk producers equal to that of other groups.'" The 2,000 delegates also adopted a resolution calling for improved public understanding of farm problems and production costs.

Students at Kingston High School were given an opportunity this morning to see the fire department in action during a special fire drill arranged through the cooperation of school and fire department authorities.

The regular school fire drill alarm sounded about 9:35 a. m., and as the students were progressing from the building, sirens were heard and both pieces of apparatus from Central fire station sped to the school, followed by the chief's car.

The new aerial truck took its position directly in front of the entrance and firemen raised the ladder and climbed to the roof. Meanwhile, the pumper went to the rear of the building, where firemen simulated actions of fire fighting.

Although the students had not been informed as to the nature and time of this drill, Principal Clarence L. Dumm had told them last week that there was a possibility that such a drill would be held, and today's demonstration held without confusion or alarm on the part of the students.

Hitler Wasn't There Munich, Germany, Oct. 15 (AP)—A German denazification court today ordered confiscation of the personal fortunes of Adolf Hitler and his wife, Eva Braun. Chairs for the defendants were put in place facing the court, but no one showed up to occupy them. Hitler was declared a major Nazi offender—if he is alive. But the court said all available evidence indicated that Hitler died in Berlin in 1945 with Eva Braun, who became his wife a few hours before they reputedly committed suicide.

Inquiries Made On Adult Classes Touch Music, Meals

Since the registration date for the Adult Education program has been announced inquiries regarding the organization of classes in music and cooking have been received.

In the field of music the following classes have been offered in other communities:

Instrumental Music for Amateurs—For those who know how to play, groups with a mutual interest in playing favorite selections could be organized under trained leaders. All instrumentalists are welcome.

Vocal Music for Amateurs—For those who would enjoy joining voices in melodies old and new.

Cooking and Meal Planning—A course that would help young brides to plan, prepare, and serve properly balanced and appetizing meals which are nutritionally adequate could probably be arranged.

Courses in English, Social Studies, and mathematics carrying high school credit will again be made available if there is a sufficient demand. This is an opportunity whereby a high school diploma may be earned by some persons who had to leave school shortly before graduation.

For the past two or three years so many people enrolled in our sewing classes that a waiting list had to be established. To make it possible to admit everyone from the beginning, groups in the sewing classes will meet only once a week until such time as two groups can be combined.

In order that classes may be organized promptly, everyone interested in the Adult Education work is urged to register Monday evening, October 18 at 7:30 p. m. in the high school building.

Two Offices Open In Leader Building

Two new offices were opened for business today in the Leader building, 78 John street.

One is for the real estate business of Lawrence J. McAvary, who was formerly associated with Walter H. Canitz at 243 Fair street, and the other is for the insurance business of Lawrence A. Quilty, who has been associated locally with insurance since his discharge from the U. S. Army in 1945.

Prior to his joining the Canitz office, MacAvary was associated with John Van Benschoten in the automobile business at Poughkeepsie. He also worked for several years out of Poughkeepsie for a large wholesale grocery house. He is a member of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and of the local Lions Club.

Quilty, who has been conducting his business from his home for about a year, said he handles all types of insurance. A graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1937, he attended Boston College and the Insurance Institute of Chicago. He served four years in the army and was wounded in service. Before his discharge, he spent about a year in Halloran Hospital, Staten Island and while there he and Bernard Borogin, another veteran started a delivery service which they later sold.

The two offices are on the lower floor of the Leader building.

Bixby Says Other Demands Preclude Added Extension

Demands for highway improvements elsewhere in the state will preclude further extension of concrete pavement on Route 28, The Ontario Trail, "for several years in the future," James S. Bixby, district engineer in the Poughkeepsie office of the State Department of Public Works, said today.

The engineer said he had received several inquiries as to improving other sections of the route and rumors have been circulating in the area beyond Cold Brook where the new concrete road ends. His report was in answer to the inquiries and in refutation of the rumors.

Meanwhile, the state department is anxious to start work on the section of the Catskill Thruway between Saugerties and the Greene county line, as a means of eliminating heavy travel over the narrow, dangerous section of Route 9-W in the same area, the engineer said.

No bids were received on this project Oct. 13, the department reported, but the work will be re-advertised as soon as possible.

Surveys have not been made on other sections of Route 28 in the Ulster-Delaware county areas, except one years ago in the Highlands, the engineer said, and present plans of the department indicate that further improvements "are not imminent."

The last lane of concrete has been completed in the Cold Brook area of the route, and through travel should be unhampered by the end of next week.

Bergan Is Given Kerhonkson Case

An action for specific performance, involving a business property on Main street, Kerhonkson, was taken up in Supreme Court this morning before Justice Francis Bergan.

Louis Spiegel, Main street butcher, Kerhonkson, brings an action against Russell V. Decker, executor of the estate of his uncle, Russell M. Van Etten, and Floyd Decker, brother of Russell V. Decker, growing out of a bid which plaintiff alleges he made for the Main street property owned by Van Etten and advertised for sale at an executor's sale following the death of Van Etten in June 1945.

Spiegel alleges he submitted a bid for the store property, which adjoins his market, in February 1947. He contends he bid $6,500 and enclosed a check for $650 and sent the bid in and that a few days later the bid was accepted by Thomas Plunkett, attorney for the executor.

However, he contends that his bid, which he claims was the highest of five bids, did not result in his securing the property and that the property was later sold to Floyd Decker and later to Sidney Rothenberg. Spiegel contends that he should have secured title to the property and now brings an action for specific performance and damages.

Chris J. Flanagan and Robert Ortale appear for Spiegel. Judge Andrew J. Cook and William A. Kelly and Guido J. Napoletano appear for defendants.

Veteran Kills Two Over His Rating For Disability

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—Bernard V. Lembits didn't like his disability rating, so, police said, he killed two employees of the Veterans Administration.

Lembits, a 47-year-old World War 2 veteran, was charged with first degree murder. Police said he admitted orally that he shot Milton A. Jacobs, 41, chairman of the V.A. Unemployment Service Rating Board, and Emmett S. Crowe, 61, a guard, last night.

"He said the V.A. had been giving him the run-around and he was sick of it," Deputy Police Commissioner Oscar H. Dabritz said.

The shooting followed a hearing on Lembits' application for more assistance. Police arrested Lembits without resistance.

The deputy commissioner said Lembits told him he suffered internal injuries while training with the Army Air Force, but had been told at the Veterans Hospital in Batavia that he was a "crackpot."

Lembits resides with his mother and a brother on Buffalo's East Side.

Fire Resistant Paint To Be Demonstrated

A demonstration of the effectiveness of fire resistant paint will be given for members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at their regular monthly meeting to be held Tuesday, October 19, at the Woodstock Town Hall, Woodstock. It was announced by Fred C. Hardesty, secretary.

The paint, manufactured by the Scott Corporation of New York city under the trade name "Alvi R," is designed to fireproof wood structures.

A similar demonstration of this paint was given in Esopus last August and proved of interest to those present. The procedure, according to Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, is to use two miniature houses, one painted with ordinary paint and the other with Alvi R. Both houses are set afire, giving an effective illustration of the fire resisting capacities of the new type paint.

Tuesday's meeting will begin at 8 p. m. The county association will be the guests of the Woodstock Fire Company.

KINGSTON RULES SLIGHT FAVORITE OVER PORT

Superior Maroon Line Is Expected To Be Difference

Kingston High's undefeated football powerhouse makes a strong bid for 1948 DUSO League honors tonight when it tackles the defending champions, Port Jervis, at the tri-state city.

Game time is 8:15 p. m. The Burkemen, with two straight wins and 76 points to their credit, are slight favorites, although many Hudson valley experts are inclined to shy away from pre-game predictions.

One of the largest crowds ever to follow a Kingston squad out of town will witness the contest.

Four Student Buses

K.H.S. officials announced this morning that four busedowns of students will make the trip. The Maroon band, augmented to 65 pieces for the occasion, also will make an appearance.

Kingston, showing more power than anticipated by most observers, rolled to an overwhelming 45-7 victory over Middletown Saturday while Port had a difficult time subduing Newburgh, 13-0.

Middletown and Newburgh, the clubs that are supposed to battle it out for the cellar, will clash in Newburgh Saturday afternoon.

Lines To Decide

Kingston squad was reported in top physical condition with first string guard Lou Fucco, ready for full-time duty.

Tonight's pivotal clash figures to be decided in the front wall. Port's backfield of Pagano, Nicolette, Crowley and Marando, is rated on par with the Kingston quartet of Titus, Rienzo, Keating and Kistos. The Maroon line rates as the differences between the clubs.

The tentative lineups:

Kingston	Port Jervis
Albany	L.E. Pinkola
Meyers	L.T. Ryder
Fucco	L.G. Makarewicz
Benincasa	C. Smith
Rice	H.C. Horton

Kelly Heads For Yanks?

Cincinnati, Oct. 14 (AP)—George Kelly, first base coach of the Cincinnati Reds in 1947 and 1948, will not return next season, Warren C. Giles, president of the club, announced today.

Kelly, a former star first baseman and slugger for the New York Giants, and in 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930 with Cincinnati, came here as a coach when Johnny Neun became manager.

In New York rumors were afloat that Kelly would succeed either Johnny Schulte or Charlie Dressen as coach of the New York Yankees. Casey Stengel, new manager of the Yanks, always has been an admirer of Long George.

They were teammates on the New York Giants in the 1920s.

Munson, Harris Schatzel Run In Tie for First

Sweeping the first nine places, including a triple tie for first place, among Ad Munson, George Schatzel and Junius "Joju" Harris, the Kingston High School cross country squad overwhelmed Tannersville Central High, 15 to 40, yesterday in Tannersville.

The front running Maroon trio set a new course record of 11 minutes, 20 seconds for the 2 2/10 miles mountain layout. It was their third straight victory of the season.

First Tannersville runner across the line was Straussner, who trailed the pack in 10th position.

Jackson of Kingston was fourth in 11:32, with Miller and Burns tied for fifth and sixth; Terpening and Dabany sharing the seventh and eighth slots and Delamater taking ninth.

The order of finish:

1. Triple tie among A. Munson, G. Schatzel, J. Harris, Kingston, new course record of 11:20.
2. Jackson, Kingston, 11:30.
3. Miller and Burns, K., 11:32.
4. Terpening and Dabany, K., 11:50.
5. Delamater, Kingston, 12:10.
6. Straussner, T., 12:20.
7. Germano, T., 12:56.
8. Grant, Potter, Fenson, Holman, Dunham, Kingston.

Rangers Flash New Hustle

Montreal, Oct. 15 (AP)—The New York Rangers may not end up with as good a record as last year in the National Hockey League. But if their first game is any indication they're going to have twice as much hustle.

The Rangers pulled a huge surprise here last night in holding the Montreal Canadiens to a 1-1 tie.

With three of their players out of action because of an automobile accident, the Rangers were given little chance, but the Blue Shirts fooled them.

They gained the deadlock in the closing minutes of the third period after trailing most of the game. They put on an interesting show. And above all, they hustled.

Montreal scored early in the first period. George Robertson, a rookie, took a pass from Elmer Lach and bucked in a shot past Chuck Rayner.

The New York goal came after a faceoff near the Montreal net. Ed Kullman picked up the puck and whistled a shot past Bill Duran.

No games are scheduled in the league tonight.

Robinson Risks Title

Sugar Ray Robinson, world welterweight champion, announced yesterday that he would defend his title against the winner of the bout between Charley Fusari and Tippy Larkin who meet at the Jersey City Armory tonight.

Robinson made his statement in the offices of Tournament of Champions in the presence of Andy Niederreiter.

Niederreiter revealed that he will guarantee Robinson $35,000 for the battle. The promoter said that no date for the match had been set, since his organization is presently concerned with the Fusari-Larkin clash and the fight between Robinson and middleweight Steve Belloise on December 2.

None of the 17 backfield men on the football roster of the University of South Carolina weigh over 200 pounds.

Players from 23 states are on the football roster of Yale.

Mangrum Takes Lead

Glendale, Calif., Oct. 15 (AP)—Dapper Lloyd Mangrum led the procession into the second round of the $15,000 Glendale Open Golf Tournament today, teeing off with a two-stroke lead over the field. He posted a 66 for the first 18 holes.

Hoping for continued ideal weather for this inaugural gamble in promoting major league golf, the sponsoring Glendale Junior Chamber of Commerce also looked for Mangrum to keep alive his professional feud with little Ben Hogan.

Favored Hogan toured the par 72 Oakmont County Club course in 69 strokes in yesterday's opening round, once again signaling an early threat to be in on the top money when the tournament winds up Sunday.

Sandwiched in between Mangrum and Hogan were Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., with 68, and tied up with Ben at 69 were Ed Oliver of Seattle and Zell Eaton of nearby Montebello, Calif.

A scant seven players were able to master par in the first round—the above named, and Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., and Fred Hawkins of Antioch, Illinois, both with 70's.

Trailing behind were such familiar tournament players as Lawson Little, Vic Ghezzi, and Ed Furgol, all with 75's, and former National Amateur Champion Skeel Riegel, with 76.

Golf Match at 10 A.M.

The 1948 city golf championship match between John Van Gonsie of Twaitskill and Maurice Davenport of Wiltwyck has been advanced to 10 a. m. Saturday at Wiltwyck, because of the funeral of the late Roy Sulliff, it was announced this morning.

The first half of the 36-hole titular playoff originally had been scheduled for 1 p. m.

The final 18-holes will be staged at the previously announced time, 1 p. m. Sunday, at Twaitskill Golf Club.

Van Gonsie and Davenport, two of the all-time amateur golf greats of Kingston, will battle for the crown now held by Billy Van Aken of Wiltwyck. Van Aken defeated Ed Rembert of Twaitskill last year. Roy Vogt of Wiltwyck defeated Dr. Fred Holcombe Jr., in the first city playoff in 1946.

Predict Northwestern-Irish Break After Nov. 13 Contest

Evansville, Ill., Oct. 15 (AP)—The 49-year-old football series between Notre Dame and Northwestern.

Says a spokesman for the Wildcats, will not be broken off after this year's game, although there may be a one or two year gap in the series.

The Wildcats and Irish are to meet November 13 in their 28th game of a series which dates back to 1889. A Northwestern spokesman last night denied published reports that the game will be the last between the two schools.

"We are definitely not breaking off relations with Notre Dame," said the spokesman, who asked anonymity. "Our 1949 schedule has not been completed and will not be announced until December. There may be a one or two year gap in the Northwestern-Notre Dame series, but we have no thought of 'dropping' the Irish."

Big Nine Pressure

Reports that the Wildcats were dropping Notre Dame because of pressure by the Western Conference were termed "absolutely silly" by the spokesman. "The two teams started their current unbroken string of games in 1929 after a three-year lapse. In the 27 games played Notre Dame has won 22, lost three and two contests ended in ties. The last Northwestern victory was 20-0 in 1940.

The Northwestern spokesman said the Wildcats are working on a heavy conference and interconference program "and we may cook up an interconference series with Navy for 1940-51 in connection with the university's centennial, but that is not definite. But we are definitely not breaking off football relations with Notre Dame."

There was no immediate comment available with Notre Dame officials. Coach Frank Leahy last night was en route to Nebraska for tomorrow's game between the Irish and Nebraska at Lincoln.

Duties of County Clerk Discussed

Raymond A. McAndrew, Democratic candidate for the office of county clerk discussed the duties of a county clerk before the members of the Democratic Club of the Town of Wawarsing Thursday.

Mr. McAndrew spoke in part as follows:

The general powers and duties of a county clerk include the following:

1. He has the custody of all books, records, deeds, mortgages, maps and papers duly deposited in his office and he has the duty of seeing that every instrument which complies with the legal requirements is properly filed or recorded, and he must attend to the safe keeping and preservation of the same. In connection therewith he must provide, at county expense, all necessary books for the recording of all the papers, documents, or matters authorized by law to be recorded in his office.

2. Whenever there is a vacancy in any county office which the governor is entitled to fill, it is the official announcement thereof to the governor. He reports likewise to the Governor as to all county officers in his county who were elected or appointed and who qualified thereafter, as well as such of those who have neglected to file any required undertaking, or who failed to file the constitutional oath of office.

3. He must keep a book, open at all times for public inspection, showing every fee charged or received by him for any official service, the time of same, its nature, and the person for whom rendered.

4. He must duly account, as may be required by law, for all fees and monies received by him on the discharge of his official duties.

5. When requested by a person who tenders the fees allowed by law, he must diligently search the files, papers, records and dockets in his office; and either make one or more transcripts therefrom, and certify to the correctness thereof, and to the search—or certify that the document or paper, of which the custody legally belongs to him, cannot be found.

6. He must be clerk of the County Court and to the Supreme Court. As most people are aware, the county clerk must accept for recording, without any fee whatsoever, all certificates of the honorable discharge of any veteran, issued after April 6, 1917. He must also provide a certified copy thereof without charge to any veteran for any purpose for which such original honorable discharge may be required in the State of New York.

There are similar provisions of the law which deal with the recording, without any fee, of certificates issued to exempt volunteer firemen.

C.I.O. Fist Fight

Buckmaster ordered them to keep quiet or leave.

As Buckmaster said, "they were jumping up and making points of order so loudly, with everyone trying to talk at once, that we had to adjourn the meeting early at mid-day."

After lunch the hearing committee met in another room at C.I.O. headquarters, inviting only a few of the New York Council proponents.

But soon the New Yorkers began interrupting the proceedings. Buckmaster said, so he ordered a ringleader, Sam Burt, ousted.

Then the flats began to fly in earnest. Afterward a team of 20 right wingers and another of 20 left wingers retired from the room, and "everything proceeded smoothly," according to Buckmaster.

Both sides held news conferences afterward. Buckmaster said he "hoped" today's hearing would be less hectic. The Burt group, headed by James Durkin, president, and Saul Mills, secretary of the New York C.I.O. Council, contended the whole thing was "a kangaroo court."

Durkin said he was wiring a protest to C.I.O. President Philip Murray. In Pittsburgh about "strong arm methods," Durkin said his 20 "witnesses" knew when they weren't wanted and would be on hand today.

Posted Tribute

Tells of Kindness

Of Robert Dietz

How Robert Dietz, the Kingston High School student who was destined to be awarded the nation's highest honor, appeared to a younger boy is the subject of a written tribute which is posted below the memorial plaque in the front corridor of the high school building this week.

This tribute, which is unsigned, was written by a present student of Kingston High School who knew Staff Sergeant Dietz when Dietz was a high school pupil and the writer was a much younger boy. It is reproduced below with the permission of high school authorities.

ROBERT DIETZ

Bob was rather a deep lad. He didn't confide any one of his troubles with anyone. He never was boisterous or a show-off. The dominating characteristic of him was his quiet, easy-going manner.

Kindness was supreme with him. Many days you could see him carrying Homer, a crippled boy, down the street to his house...

No one else would think of going through all the trouble for a crippled boy.

Bob was always willing to lend a hand, no matter what the task was. He was mechanically inclined and liked to tinker with cars. He would often help the neighbors when they had trouble with their cars.

Bob was well liked by everyone and everyone was his friend, especially the children.

Truck Carrying Dynamite Blows Up on Highway

Tamaqua, Pa., Oct. 15 (AP)—A truck loaded with 10 tons of dynamite blew up on a highway near Tamaqua early today and thanks to some daring rescue work by the truck's driver, no one was injured.

State Policeman Edward Zmijewski said this version of the mishap was given him by the driver, 31-year-old E. W. Petty of Little Rock, Ark.

Petty loaded his truck with the explosives at the Atlas Powder Co. plant at nearby Reynolds, Pa., last night and then started for Raleigh, N. C.

He pulled the truck off the highway and went to sleep, awaking at 5 a. m. He had driven about one mile when he smelled smoke and then saw flames in the rear of the truck.

Petty leaped from the vehicle and raced along the highway flagging down cars. He started back for the truck but stopped when he heard a small explosion.

Then a series of terrific blasts knocked Petty from his feet.

State police found the motor of the demolished truck 1,000 feet away in a wooded area. Treetops were snapped off and windows were broken in nearby towns.

Residents of Pottsville some 17 miles away reported they were awakened by the force of the blast.

The explosion ripped a 40 by 60 foot hole in the macadam road.
